New Beginnings

Are you in a New Appointment? Have you been in your Current Appointment for less than 5 Years? Are you in a Cross Cultural Appointment? If any one of these is true for you, then you will find the following "New Beginnings" sessions to be of great value. Each presentation allows for a time of Q & A.

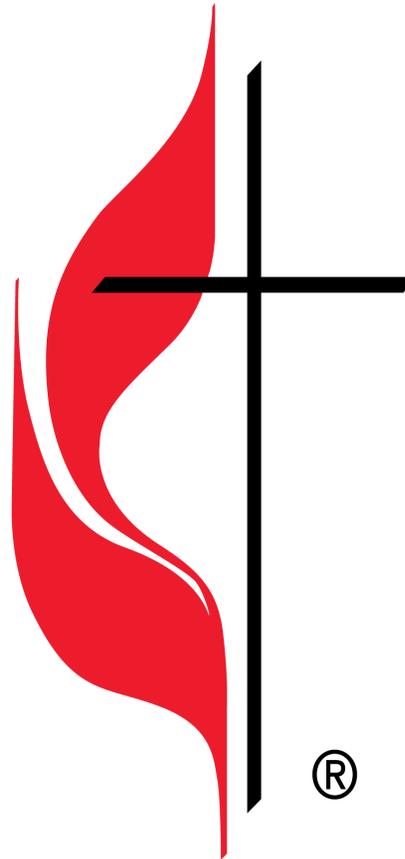

SESSIONS

THREE KEY CHALLENGES TO BE COVERED

The Entry into a New Setting...Avoiding Predecessor Syndrome Challenge

Rev. Rob Townsend

Both the newly appointed pastor and the receiving church will be able to quickly spot disappointments in one another. Most likely, you will find situations different from your past appointment. Since we humans require more time to recognize and acknowledge strengths, much will be on your shoulders as the new pastor. The focus of this presentation will be the importance of expressing your love for a congregation while it develops a good relationship with the new pastor.

The Cross Cultural Versus the Cross Racial Challenge

Rev. Dr. Shirlyn Henry Brown

What one can expect and how one should deal with the cross cultural appointment in the context of race AND culture, as well as, how to make sure the entry into the new setting goes smoothly for the pastor and the congregation will be shared in this segment.

Emotional Dimensions of Transitions

Rev. Tina Blake

Going and coming means saying hello almost while still saying goodbye. Moving almost always means a time of major transition not only for the person in the new appointment, but also for the family. Allowing for the grieving process to flow naturally is important as failure of proper closure can impede ministry for some time to come. It is important to express your love for a congregation, while also making clear it develops a good relationship with the new pastor.
